War In The Gulf

Presidential Letter to College Students

If armed men invaded a home in this country, killed those in their way, stole what they wanted and then announced the house was now theirs no one would hesitate about what must be done.

And that is why we cannot hesitate about what must be done halfway around the world: in Kuwait.

There is much in the modern world that is subject to doubts or questions washed in shades of gray. But not the brutal aggression of Saddam Hussein against a peaceful, sovereign nation and its people. It's black and white. The facts are clear. The choice unambiguous.

Right vs. wrong

The terror Saddam Hussein has imposed upon Kuwait violates every principle of human decency. Listen to what Amnesty International has documented. "Widespread abuses of human rights have been perpetrated by Iraqi forces...arbitrary arrest and detention without trial of thousands...widespread torture...imposition of the death penalty and the extrajudicial execution of hundreds of unarmed civilians, including children."

Including children. There's no horror that could make this a more obvious conflict of good vs. evil. The man who used chemical warfare on his own people once again including children now oversees public hangings of dissenters. And daily his troops commit atrocities against Kuwaiti citizens.

This brutality has reverberated throughout the entire world. If we do not follow the dictates of our inner moral compass and stand up for human life, then his lawlessness will threaten the peace and democracy of the emerging New World Order we now see: this long dreamed-of vision we've all worked toward for so long.

A year after the joyous dawn of freedom's light in eastern Europe, a dark evil has descended in another part of the world. But we have the chance and we have the obligation to stop ruthless aggression.

I have been in war. I have known the terror of combat. And I tell you this with all my heart: I don't want there to be war ever again. I am determined to do absolutely everything possible in the search for a peaceful resolution to this crisis but only if the peace is genuine, if it rests on principle, not appeasement.

But while we search for that answer, in the Gulf young men and women are putting their own lives on hold in order to stand for peace in our world and for the essential value of human life itself. Many are younger than my own children. Your age, most of them. Doing tough duty for something they believe in.

Let me tell you about

AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL RESPONSE TO PRESIDENT BUSH'S LETTER TO CAMPUS NEWSPAPERS

Clear facts. Black and white. Unambiguous choice. These are the terms President Bush used in the letter he sent to over 450 college and university newspapers last week. The subject was Iraqi occupation of Kuwait. The object was to prepare young people for military confrontation in the Persian Gulf.

The letter cited Amnesty International's recent report on Iraq as evidence to support the administration's position. Perhaps presidential advisers know that Amnesty volunteer groups are now active on more than 2,600 campuses in this country. I hope the administration will soon learn that Amnesty members and other student activists cannot be misled by opportunistic manipulation of the international human rights movement.

Amnesty published its report on the Iraqi Government's gross human rights violations for one purpose: to advance the protection of human rights. By publicizing such abuses, the movement generates public pressure and international protest. Governments over the years have channeled particular portions of Amnesty's findings into their political agendas, and government authorities undoubtedly will continue to do so in the future. But the United States public should not tolerate selective indignation by its own government. We can teach our political leaders that people's human rights are not convenient issues for rhetorical arsenals.

When taken at face value, President Bush's condemnation of torture and political killings by Iraqi authorities appears laudable. Violations of basic human rights should arouse indignation and inspire action to stop them. The matter becomes less "clear" and "unambiguous," however, in the light of two questions: Why did our Pres-

UNIVERSITY OF BRIDGEPORT'S ACCREDITATION EXTENDED IN A VOTE OF CONFIDENCE BY STATE BOARD OF GOVERNORS

The University of Bridgeport received a vote of confidence when the state's Board of Governors for Higher Education voted to extend the university's accreditation for two years.

The Board of Governors voted unanimously to grant UB the accreditation saying it was pleased with the progress the school has made in addressing its challenges.

"We're saying let's extend their existing accreditation for two years and give them some time to pull out of their problems," said Thomas A. Aquila, Chairman of the Board of Governors.

Norma Foreman Glasgow, State Commissioner, noted she was pleased with the university's improvements in budgeting, planning and fund-raising.

UB President Janet D. Greenwood called the two-year extension appropriate because it coincides with an accreditation review currently underway by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

At the hearing yesterday, Dr. Greenwood said the university expects to finish this year with a balanced budget. UB is also developing a long-term academic plan that will be brought before its Board of Trustees on Jan. 23. "We expect to work closely with both the state Department of Higher Education and the NEASC in monitoring progress in planning and budgeting to ensure that our students are receiving a quality education at UB," the President stated.

"We are hopeful that the NEASC will take this favorable response into consideration when it deliberates on UB's status this March. The state Board of Governors for Higher Education will monitor the actions of the NEASC on UB's accreditation status. All will participate in the NEASC's fall 1992 evaluation visit to the University."

UB Faculty Council President, Professor Thomas Thomas, expressed pleasure at the Board's decision. "It is an expression of confidence in the quality of UB's faculty and academic

UNIVERSITY OF BRIDGEPORT RECEIVES LARGEST GIFT IN IT'S HISTORY

The University of Bridgeport received the largest gift in the 63-year history of the institution, from an anonymous donor.

In making the announcement at a press briefing, UB President Dr. Janet D. Greenwood said that the letter of intent to donate $5 million over a period of several years "is a wonderful reaffirmation of faith in the future of the University and its commitment to the Arts." The money will be restricted by the donor to primarily the arts and humanities areas. "We have been blessed this holiday season with this most generous gift which is truly a vote of confidence in our future."

The president noted that the University is now focused on long-range planning efforts and the many opportunities that can now be accomplished. Representatives of the various constituencies of the University are working on a new University plan which is based on the Academic Plan which will be presented to the Board of Trustees early in the Spring 1991 semester.

"This donation from long-time UB supporters so nicely compliments all the positive changes that are happening on campus and has provided a wonderful enhancement to our progressively developing programs in the Arts and our partnership role as a Regional Center for the Arts in Southwestern Connecticut."

ident remain mute on the subject of the Iraqi Government's patterns of severe human rights abuses prior to August 1990? Why does he remain mute about abuses committed by other governments, our so-called coalition partners in the region?

Iraqi soldiers' behavior in Kuwait does not constitute a sudden shift to the brutal side. Iraqi civilians have suffered such cruel and degrading treatment by government personnel for more than a decade, as detailed in numerous Amnesty International reports. There was no presidential indignation, for example, in 1989, when Amnesty released its findings about the torture of Iraq and engaged in a consistent pattern of gross human rights violations.

If United States policies before August 1990 had reflected concern about the Iraqi Government's human rights record, our country might not be digging in for war today. Tomorrow's tensions in the region may well be mapped by the human rights records of our long-term "friends," such as the Syrian Government. We've heard little from the United States Government in recent years about the appalling tactics of repression used in Saudi Arabia and Syria.

Torture is reportedly a common practice in Saudi Arabia, and political detainees have been jailed there for prolonged periods without charge or trial. Syrian prisoners are routinely tortured. A majority of the thousands of political prisoners held in Syria have been denied their right to a trial.

Relentless and ruthless abuses by the Iranian Government continue. More than 5,000 Iranians have been executed during the last three years. Incommunicado detention and torture are routine in Morocco, and that country's government persists in responding to "disappearances" with secrecy and silence. Our government fails to act with determination against the torture suffered by tens of thousands of prisoners held in Turkish jails.

The Egyptian Government has subjected many thousands of political prisoners to detention without charge or trial. The torture of political prisoners, especially supporters of Islamic groups opposing the government, is reportedly common in Egypt. In the Israeli Occupied Territories, thousands of Palestinians have been detained without charge or trial. Many of the detainees committed the "offense" of peacefully exercising their rights to free expression and association. Israeli troops, often engaging in excessive use of force, have killed hundreds of Palestinian civilians.

President Bush's selective indignation over Iraq's abuses in Kuwait undermines the norms of "human decency" he touts in his letter to campus newspaper. All people in all countries are entitled to human rights protection: international humanitarian standards rest upon this principle. The standards are unequivocally practical, because human rights protection establishes a foundation for just, peaceful, stable order. Exploiting human rights to justify violent confrontation is itself indecent.

Amnesty International takes no position on the territorial disputes now raging in the Persian Gulf. But we do support international coalition building to prevent all egregious human rights violators from conducting business as usual. If President Bush is sincere about "desperately wanting peace and if he wishes to remove ambiguity from his invocation of "moral obligation," then let him be consistent in his concern for human rights.

UNIVERSITY OF BRIDGEPORT'S CHIROPRACTIC COLLEGE FIRST TO OPEN ON ACADEMIC CAMPUS IN U.S.

When the University of Bridgeport opens its doors to its first class of approximately 65 chiropractic students on April 22, it will enter the history books as the first such program affiliated with a university in the U.S.

Currently, more than 400 prospective students are vying for those coveted 65 spots for the first trimester, reports Dr. Frank Zolli, program director. An additional 60 students will be enrolled in September. During the first year of operation, a total 180 students will be admitted to the program which will cap at a maximum of 500 students enrolled for the entire 10 trimester program.

In late December, the State Connecticut Board of Governors for Higher Education paved the way for the College's opening when it unanimously approved the licensure of a doctor of chiropractic degree and the establishment of a College of Chiropractic on the main campus of UB. UB has had a pre-chiropractic program offered through the College of Science and Engineering's Biology Department for 60 years.

"This is a great opportunity for the University of Bridgeport and the chiropractic profession. I feel the decision to grant this license reflects a vote of confidence by the Board of Governors not only in the University of Bridgeport but in chiropractic education in general," Dr. Zolli said.

Dr. Edwin Eigel, UB's Provost and Academic Vice President, said, "The University of Bridgeport has had a successful pre-chiropractic program for several years and its graduate program in Human Nutrition has attracted practicing chiropractors who want to broaden their expertise in a related field."

"The College of Chiropractic here is a natural addition. Students will now be able to complete their entire undergraduate and professional training at UB. In this, affiliation is not only unique but enhances educational opportunities for students in the field. They now have access to the programs and resources of a comprehensive university with a Law School, and four colleges: Health and Human Services, Business and Public Management, Science and Engineering, and Arts and Humanities."

UB President, Dr. Janet D. Greenwood said, "The University of Bridgeport is fully committed to offering students chiropractic education which is on the cutting edge of the profession."

Plans for the establishment of the Chiropractic College began in early 1989 and were spearheaded by a steering committee of chiropractic physicians in the Northeast. Dr. Arnold Cianciulli, from where, said, "The Trustees and President of the University of Bridgeport have demonstrated progressive educational foresight by establishing this college as part of their university. This major step will herald a new era in American chiropractic education."

UB's Board of Trustees appointed Dr. Robert J. Mastrisciano of South Ozone Park (NY) to its board to represent the new college. He said, "UB's willingness to establish a College of Chiropractic together with members of the chiropractic profession will form a productive relationship that will forge the framework for a superior chiropractic education which is fully integrated within the operations of the University."

"I look forward to working with fellow Board members in building a bright future for the College of Chiropractic and the University of Bridgeport," Dr. Mastrisciano added.

Presidential Letter

one of the soldiers over there, S.F.C. Terry Hatfield, a young man from Georgia. He sent me a Christmas card. And this is what he wrote.

"Mr. President, I just wanted you to know my soldiers and I are ready to do whatever mission you decide. Freedom as we know and enjoy has been taken away from another country and must be restored, although we are separated from family, friends, loved ones, we will do what must be done...We stand ready and waiting. God Bless you and the U.S.A."

Terry understands the moral obligation that has compelled our extraordinary multi-national coalition to make this stand in the Gulf. To look this international terrorist straight in the eye and say: no concessions. To proclaim for now and for the future: no compromises. To bear witness by our presence to the fact that aggression will not be rewarded.

Terry waits thousands of miles from the White House, yet we share the same thoughts. We desperately want peace. But we know that to reward aggression would be to end the promise of our New World Order. To reward aggression would be to destroy the United Nation's promise as international peacekeeper. To reward aggression would be to condone the acts of those who would desecrate the promise of human life itself.

And we will do none of this. There are times in life when we confront values worth fighting for. This is one such time.

Each day that passes means another day for Iraq's forces to dig deeper into their stolen land, another day Saddam Hussein can work toward building his nuclear arsenal and perfecting his chemical and biological weapons capability. Another day of atrocities for Amnesty International to document. Another day of international outlaws, instead of international law.

I ask you to think about the economic devastation that Saddam Hussein would continue to wreak on the world's emerging democracies if he were in control of one-fifth of the world's oil reserves. And to reflect on the terrible threat that a Saddam Hussein armed with weapons of mass destruction already poses to human life and to the future of all nations.

Together, as an America united against these horrors, we can, with our coalition partners, assure that this aggression is stopped and the principles on which this nation and the rest of the civilized world are founded are preserved.

And so let us remember and support Terry Hatfield, all our fine servicemen and women, as they stand ready on the frontier of freedom, willing to do their duty and do it well. They deserve our complete and enthusiastic support and lasting gratitude.

Newman Foundation Makes Donation

The University of Bridgeport's innovative Project CHOICE scholarship program recently received a $27,000 grant from Actor Paul Newman's Salad King Foundation.

Project CHOICE is a nationally recognized model that extends the cooperative education opportunity and enables students to meet the cost of the college freshman year through tuition scholarships.

University of Bridgeport President Dr. Janet Greenwood said, "We are so very pleased with the show of confidence in this very important urban interconnect model, the first of its kind in the U. S. Project CHOICE has delivered an impressive $1.8 million in scholarships to 173 students in five years."

University of Bridgeport's Michael Bisciglia,

Vice President of University Relations, said, "Everyone's actions do make a difference. Mr. Newman's contribution will enable us to make a difference in the lives of area residents. We believe the strength of Project CHOICE serves as an important model for similar programs in other areas."

The program works with students from public high schools in Bridgeport, Fairfield, Stratford, Norwalk, and Trumbull, as well as the Diocese of Bridgeport.

Mr. Newman, a resident of nearby Westport, established his Salad King Foundation in the early 1980s and has donated its profits to charities.

In 1988, University students raised funds to sponsor two children to attend Mr. Newman's Hole in the Wall Camp for young people aged seven to 17 who have cancer or potentially fatal blood diseases. President Greenwood visited the camp as Mr. Newman's guest.

"Project CHOICE is just one of the partnerships we have developed to serve the region," Dr. Greenwood said. "We have made a serious commitment to identify disadvantaged students with potential; to provide and increase the necessary financial aid through scholarships, work-study and loans; to offer pre-college and college programs to make undergraduate study a viable choice; and to increase admissions efforts and counseling support."

Six years ago, UB's John Connelly, a Stratford resident, realized there was a need to provide full freshman year tuition for students who might not be able to attend college without this financial assurance. He also found ways to provide these students with transitional jobs that would lead them to the cooperative education system, for which they would become eligible in their sophomore year.

The result was UB's unique program, Project CHOICE, which opens educational opportunities for those who need them most. Tuition scholarships come from a UB Partnership, grants from foundations such as the Salad King Foundation, corporate and municipal scholarships, and from money earned at Project CHOICE jobs; full time jobs in the summer and 15 hours a week during the college year.

The program graduated its first class last Spring.

Calendar

Taxes And The College Student

Unclaimed At 24

Once students reach age 24, the rules for who can claim their personal exemptions change. Students who are 24 or older by the end of the calendar year may not be claimed by their parents if their gross income equals or exceeds the amount of their personal exemption ($2,050 for 1990). However, at that point, they may claim their own exemptions of their own tax returns.

Taxes at College

Some of the best things in life are free, but that may not include your scholarship or fellowship. Scholarships and fellowships awarded after August 16, 1986, may be partially or fully taxable.

Only degree candidates may exclude any scholarship or fellowship payments from income. There are several restrictions on the exclusion including both the types of qualifying expenses and the types of payments received.

The "qualified" amounts that are not taxable include payments that cover enrollment tuition or fees and course-related expenses for books, fees, supplies and equipment. Any other amounts, such as for room, board, travel or incidental expenses must be reported as income for the year received.

Many scholarships and fellowships also include pay for past, present or future services. Any payment received for services is taxable for the year of receipt, even if the service is required of all candidates for a particular degree.

Students who are not candidates for a degree must report all scholarship and fellowship amounts as income for the year received.

Those who received scholarships or fellowships awarded before August 17, 1986, should continue to report these payments in the same way they were reported in the past.

For more detailed information, call 1-800-TAX-FORM for a free copy of IRS Publication 520, Scholarships and Fellowships.

Where's The Copy?

Many colleges and universities require information from students' tax returns and sometimes complete copies of the returns.

If students or their parents have misplaced their copies of filed federal tax returns, the Internal Revenue Service can help. It may take 45 days to get a copy of a federal tax return.

Send form 4506, "Request for Copy of Tax Form," with $4.25 for each copy requested to the Internal Revenue Service Center where the original return was filed. Form 4506 can be ordered by calling IRS at 1-800-TAX-FORM.

Tax account information is free. Usually within two weeks the student can receive information such as a filing status, number of exemptions claimed, adjusted gross income, taxable income and income tax shown on the return. Account information can be obtained by calling 1-800-TAX-1040.

The students should allow at least six weeks processing time after a return is filed before requesting a copy or other information.

Tax Guide for Students

A publication which guides high school and college students through the federal tax system is available from the Internal Revenue Service.

Publication 4, Student's Guide to Federal Income Tax, gives students an overview of the tax system, with a brief background of taxation and an explanation of withholding of income tax, types of income and expenses, and filing requirements for students.

Other topics include estimated tax, types of information and tax returns and filling out Form W-4, "Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate." Also included are filled-in samples of Form W-4 and Form 1040EZ, "Income Tax Return for Single filers with No Dependents."

A free copy of Publications 4 may be ordered by calling 1-800-TAX-FORM.

Pumped Up!!!

BY BEN ESTAFANI

Our Lady Knights Gymnastic's team was indeed "pumped up", on January 19th. They competed against Southern Connecticut and Rutgers University. They were behind in the first round of competition but, captured first place in the final rounds. They never looked back. Rutgers led by a tenth of a point but eventually our women's team, excuse the pun, bounced back.

Sue Schorpp, Lisa Warner, and Julie Broglino kept the scores in the nines (10 being top the highest possible score) throughout the competition. Judy Kaplin and Kim Radley also scored high in the balance beam. All-around performance scored were, U.B.'s Julie Broglino and Rutgers', Beth Elianfante with 36.1. In fact, all the girls did pretty well. They did so well that Southern Connecticut never stood a chance to attain second place. Rutgers was good but once they were on the balance beam and our team in their best event, the floor routine, by only a few tenths of a point ahead, they had them beat.

Also, let's not forget the growing number of fans. During the last three home meets sore and more fans have been coming out to the meets. They make the meets special for the Lady Knights. The Ladies' first away meet is being held in Washington D.C. The next home meet is Saturday, February 23rd against Brown University at 1 p.m. in the gym.
